This morning Lt. Governor Denny Heck tested positive for Covid-19. Heck, who is fully vaccinated and boosted, is asymptomatic and isolating at home in line with CDC and Senate guidelines. He will work remotely until cleared to return to the office.

“I am grateful to be fully vaccinated, boosted, and asymptomatic. I am also grateful for rapid test technology alerting me to the need to isolate, cutting the chain of transmission for the virus. I look forward to returning to the Senate chamber once cleared to do so,” Heck said.

Heck, 69, was elected Lt. Governor in 2020. He previously served four terms in the U.S. House of Representatives and co-founded TVW, Washington’s public affairs channel. He lives in Olympia with his wife Paula, a retired middle school principal.
